Note: The table shows the ratification status of the 8 ILO conventions regarding core labor standards for the 181 economies included in Doing Business 2009 as of July 28, 2008. The ratification of these conventions is not included in the Doing Business employing workers indicators. Nor does Doing Business measure compliance with the core labor standards. Doing Business will conduct further analysis on compliance with these standards in the coming years. One issue to be further explored concerns the relationship between national law and the ILO conventions. In some cases, for example, national law may go beyond what is required in some of the ILO conventions and may not allow ratification for this reason. And in some cases where the ILO conventions have been ratified, national law may be in contradiction with some of the ILO conventions and may specifically give priority to the national over the international provisions.

a. Hong Kong (China), Puerto Rico and Taiwan (China) are not independent members of the ILO.
